Dear All,

Thank you everyone who set up and used Squadi for the first time last weekend. Thank you to all who provided feedback on any issues and improvements, we have taken much of this directly to Squadi and will be working to have these matters resolved as soon as possible.

There are also several directives and some clarification for our referees based on last weeks roll out. Please see the instructions below:

Penalties

Whilst the instruction during the training was to mark penalties as a penalty instead of a normal goal when adding a goal in the app, please now ensure that all penalties scored during a game are selected as "Penalty Goal" Please do not select anything as a just "penalty" or "penalty shootout" on the app after the match. If "penalty goal" is not available, please select "goal".

Own Goals

There was some confusion around the adding of own goals. Please allocate any own goals to the team and player that conceded the goal. The system will automatically recognise that this goal should be awarded to the opposition when it is submitted.

Goal Scorers

Whilst this has been an issue in some games prior to Squadi, the instant publishing of results had brought more of a focus on ensuring the right players have been allocated goals. Please ensure you note the correct goal scorers and consult the rest of your refereeing team if required.

Reporting

The new NNSWF red card report will likely be rolled out within the app in the coming fortnight; however, we ask that referees do use the send off report within the app where possible, the same is asked for incident reports. If you have any issues using these report, or are restricted by the current character limits, the current send off and incident report forms will remain live and available for use.

Further Issues

The feedback from referees using the system is a critically important part of this roll out, and we ask that should you find further issues that you take screenshots of these issues and provide them to NNSWF through referees@northernnswfootball.com.au

Thank you again for your patience during this period.

Kind regards,

Liam Bentley
